Welcome to Denmark!

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, new rules have been introduced on mandatory testing and isolation in connection with your entry into Denmark.

All persons arriving at Danish airports – regardless of nationality – must be tested for COVID-19 before leaving the airport. No matter the result of this test, all persons entering Denmark must isolate for 10 days after entry.*

→ Violation of the mandatory testing and isolation rules is punishable by fine.

→ A number of exemptions to the testing and isolation requirements apply.

See the requirements and exemptions at coronasmitte.dk. We wish you a pleasant journey.

When you land at a Danish airport

1. Upon arrival at the airport
   As a general rule, you must obtain a rapid test (antigen test) before leaving the airport. Free testing facilities are available here at the airport.

2. Isolation
   As a general rule, you must isolate for 10 days after entry. This also applies if your test at the airport is negative.

3. Breaking isolation
   You may break your isolation after obtaining a negative PCR test taken no earlier than on the fourth day after entry.

*Certain groups of persons are exempt from mandatory testing upon arrival. This includes persons who, for medical reasons, should not undergo testing, or who were previously infected with COVID-19 (this must be documented with a positive COVID-19 test result that is at least 14 days and no more than twelve weeks old). The mandatory testing requirement also does not apply for children under the age of 15. There are also a number of exemptions from the mandatory isolation requirement.
